

GLOBALITY SHOWCASES PREMIUM B2B SERVICES MARKETPLACE AT THE ENVIRONMENTAL LEADER CONFERENCE 2017

Energy and sustainability professionals to demo Globality's artificial intelligence-based platform

Menlo Park, California — May 12, 2017: Globality, Inc. has built the first global marketplace that helps leading enterprises discover and work with high-quality small and midsize service companies. Globality will be participating in the Energy Manager Summit at the 2017 Environmental Leader Conference on June 5th – 7th at the Hyatt Regency Denver Tech Center in Denver, Colorado.

Globality removes frictions inherent in consulting services procurement by matching companies with carefully selected service providers uniquely positioned to meet their needs. This approach combines artificial intelligence and insights from in-house industry experts to forge meaningful business relationships between clients and service providers. Globality's real-time communication architecture also allows seamless collaboration on a secure, cloud-based platform.

Globality's energy, environment and social impact service provider network extends to over 60 countries across more than 300 types of projects. This includes energy efficiency and carbon reductions, as well as environmental, health and safety services.

"At Globality, we're on a mission to help businesses around the world deliver their sustainability goals by radically changing the way they connect and collaborate with each other. It's important, now more than ever, for companies to work together to create a sustainable future," said Robert Casamento, General Manager of Globality's Energy, Environment and Social Impact sectors.

Attendees can find Globality at booth #206 on the showroom floor during this year's conference. Company representatives, including Will Sarni, Globality Strategic Advisor, will be available to demo the platform.

Learn more at www.globality.com.

About Globality

Founded in 2015 by seasoned entrepreneurs Joel Hyatt and Lior Delgo in Menlo Park, California, Globality is a global marketplace for premium B2B services that helps leading international enterprises discover and work with high quality small and midsize service companies. The company's mission is to make globalization work for more businesses and people around the world. It does this by enabling more small and midsize companies to participate in the global economy, helping them grow, create jobs and foster innovation.

Globality is backed by a prestigious group of investors including Al Gore, former Vice President of the United States; Ken Goldman, CFO of Yahoo; and John Emerson, former U.S. Ambassador to Germany. The company's board includes Dennis Nally, former Global Chairman of PwC; Ron Johnson, CEO of Enjoy and former Apple SVP; and Juliet de Baubigny, Senior Partner at Kleiner Perkins Caufield & Byers.

Press Contact

Bite Communications for Globality
Bethany Mullinix
Globality@biteglobal.com